

COVID-19 Home Test Kits

COVID-19 Self-Test kits are a common item in homes today, and may lead to an exposure if used incorrectly.

Exposure to the solution in the kits other than how it was intended, may be harmful.

Tips which may help you avoid poisoning from these kits include:

- Read and follow the directions before use
- Store the kit up and out of sight of small children
- Keep the kit sealed until it is needed
- Throw the used kit supplies away right away after use
- If a person is exposed to the test kit liquid other than as directed contact the local Poison Center at 1-800-222-1222
